INTERPRETS MANN WHITE SLAVE LAW

Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett Warns Democrats Against Change.

WOMEN WILL ACT.

Reprisals to be made if Law is Amended—Authorities Discuss Recent Court Decisions.

"There are already enough voteing women of the United States to hold the political balance of power. The Democratic party would have cause to regret should the Mann White Slave law not be administered to the letter by the Democratic administration, or should a Democratic congress modify its provisions so that it shall not reach to the core of moral conduct and menace every sort of offender."

So declares Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett, national president of the Florence Crittendon Mission and president of the National Council of Women. Mrs. Barrett does not threaten the Democratic party. She predicts; and in the light of her forecast, warns the Democratic party.

The letter of the Mann White Slave law, in her opinion, reaches out to cover the personal escapades of men and women, in support of her view she cites the result of the Diggs-Caminetti case in California, in which a jury convicted and a judge gave sentence although the commercial element of white slavery was not indicated by the testimony. That is the sort of a law the women of the country want on the statute books in her further opinion, and which their ballot will show that they stand for.

"The Mann law is a powerful arm to protect weak and silly girls—and boys, as well," comments Mrs. Barrett. "It is a tremendous deterrent to the strong-minded, self-indulgent man of means who uses his strength and his money to blind and overcome the scruples of some ambitious struggling young woman, perhaps with not a very strong ideal of womanhood, who in her short-sighted egotism and vanity thinks she has found a by-road to fame and fortune and she is strong enough to follow without the results that have followed a similar course in others; and the man with his superior worldly wisdom is there to take advantage of her moments of indiscretion.

"Now, he will not only have to reckon with her, but also with the United States government, which only asks the question under the law: "What was your motive when you gave her the money to buy her railroad ticket? Was she safe in your hands? "Is there any interference with the right kind of liberty in asking such a question as this when the common carriers of our country are used."

"The Mann law is a nemesis to many a self-indulgent degenerate, too indolent to work at any decent labor, who, going to our small towns and factory districts hunt our poorly developed sub-normal girls with the instinct of youth for pleasure and enjoyment, men who bring into the colorless lives of such girls the first semblance of pleasure they have ever known, and by playing upon their credulity and sense of comradeship, in connection wth their unmoral natures, bring them to a city. There, without the use of bolts and bars, such girls are kept in slavery as complete as that of our southern slaves—who, when the Army of the Potomac was at their very doors, would rush to their masters' houses to be gfro protection against their rescuers—bound to a life the horrors and the hardships of which have never been dreamed of by any slave driver that ever cursed the South.

"That is what the Mann law can accomplish. And by high heaven! the women of this country and the men as well—will have something to say before 'one jot or tittle of this law shall pass away." Good women need no protection, but the bad do, and the weak and foolish and the greedy as well."

Authorities Are Divided.

Whether the Mann White Slave law shall be administered by the courts to reach instances of personal vice and escapades of men and women, or whether it shall be applied only to crush commercialism in immorality is the problem that is dividing legislative and legal authorities. There are many men of many minds on this question.

The law in its general aspects, as approved June 25, 1910, contains the phrase, "or for any other immoral purposes," that provides the core of the discussion as to the scope of its intent. Otherwise the aim of the law seems to be directed at a clearly and well defined commercial viciousness.

The Diggs-Caminetti case in San Francisco proved an application of the law to cases of personal escapade. There was nothing in the testimony to indicate that there was the least commercial purpose in the minds of the defendants in transporting two girls into a nearby state. Yet the jury convicted under the literal construction of the law, and the court accepted the verdict and sentenced the prisoners.

Judge John C. Pollock, of the Federal Court of Kansas, took an opposing view of the law. He held that there could be no conviction under the law except under proof of commercialism. The prisoner had pleaded guilty, basing his plea on the verdict in the Diggs-Caminetti case. He ordered the plea changed to not guilty, and finally discharged the prisoner.

The Diggs-Caminetti case will be decided by the Supreme Court. The case in which Judge Pollock ruled also has been appealed. Until these are finally decided, the last construction of the law will remain in doubt.

Attorney-General McReynolds is regarded as concurring in the view of the law taken by Judge Pollock, that commercialism is essential, and that the Mann law was not framed to regulate the morals of private individuals. It is expected that he will direct limited States attorneys not to prosecute under the law except where commercialism is clearly indicated; this he is unlikely to do, however, unless the Supreme Court takes the same view of the law.

The father of the law, Representative James R. Mann, is not understood to have intended to bring personal escapades within the scope of the law. Representative H. D. Clayton, chairman, and Representative E. Y. Webb, of the House Judiciary Committee, which reported on the bill, are agreed that the Mann law does not cover personal escapades.

But Representative John J. Esch, of the majority of the committee, which put the bill into its final form, thinks that personal escapades are included in the offenses banned by the law.

In his report on the bill Representative Mann stated that it was aimed at the traffic of white slavery and not at individual iniquity; nor was it intended to aid the states in the excise of police powers. Representative W. C. Adamson, Representative C. L. Bartlett and Representative William Richardson, then of the committee, in a minority report objected to it because of its interference with the police affairs of several states.

If the bill covered personal escapades Representaetive Bartlett regards it as unconstitutional. Representative Adamson does not believe that Judge Pollock's view of the legislation, as applying only to commercial cases, is correct. Representative Clayton thinks the bill was not aimed at personal escapades.

So the divergence of opinion regarding the scope of the Mann law extends also into the legislative, judicary and legal branches of the government. It will not be clear until the Supreme Court finds out its meaning and whether that meaning is the law of the land.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Reconstruction of the administration currency bill begins today behind closed doors in the Senate banking committee. The issue is clearly drawn between the bill as passed by the house and the central bank plan proposed by President Frank A. Vanderlip, of the National City Bank of New York. On the even of the committee meeting Representative Glass, who led the fight in the House for the administration bill, denounced the central bank suggestions as an effort to confuse the issue and prevent passage of any currency measure whatever. The senate committee begins work with a majority of its members admittedly favoring the Vanderlip idea. Administration supporters declare that such a measure could not be passed in the House and that the committee therefore must work with the administration bill as a basis.

HUERTA IS STILL IN THE SADDLE

Election Returns in Mexico Fail to Indicate "No Election."

WILL INCREASE ARMY.

Thousands of Marked Ballots—Little Interest Manifested in Outlying Districts.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Returns today shows that in the Mexican elections less than 5,000 votes were cast in the federal district, which includes Mexico City, where there are 80,000 voters. Less than 300 votes were cast at Vera Cruz. Returns indicate that the voting in the outlying districts was even lighter than in Mexico City.

There were indications today that the congressional candidates would organize with the approval of General Huerta, and, declaring that there could be no election because of the light vote, would stamp the election null and void.

Gen. Felix Diaz, who resigned from the army, expects to go to Mexico City, today.

The authorities arranged today for the trial of Leon Alcolez, Diazs' brother-in-law on a charge of creating a disturbance at the election.

Mexico City, Oct. 27— Returns from the Mexican elections today showed that less than 5,000 votes were cast in the Federal district, including this city, where there are 80,000 voters.

In spite of the meagre vote, it was expected that the congressional candidates with the approval of Gen. Huerta, would declare themselves elected and organize. Their first act it is said, will be to declare the presidental electon of yesterday null and void because the total vote cast was not sufficient to make a constitutional majority for one candidate.

They then are expected to "request Huerta to remain president ad interim until another election can be held, which will be whenever Huerta sees fit to call it.

Vera Cruz, Oct. 27.—General Felix Diaz today expected that he would again be ordered to Mexico City, in spite of the fact that he telegraphed his resignation from the army to General Huerta yesterday.

The authorities arranged today to try Leon Alcolea, a notary public, and Diaz's brother-in-law, who created the only election disturbance here yesterday. Flourishing a revolver, he protested the legality of one of the voting tables and took forcible possession of all the ballots. Constables overpowered and disarmed him after locked him up. The election was very quiet, and less than 300 votes were cast. The people seemed apathetic.

The church was elaborately decorated, the feature being the arrangement of sixty-one electric lights which were illuminated and then extinguished as names of the sixty-one deceased members of the order were called out.

The principal address were made by the Rev. G. A. Luttrell, pastor of the church. Others who spoke were G. N. Cradlin, past president of the order; O. M. Daniels and John H. CLOSING OF THE BAZAAR.

Managers Realze $2,000 — Articles Left Over Disposed of at Auction.

The bazaar for the benefit of the building fund of the Alexandria Hospital, which opened last Monday night, was brought to a close at a late hour Saturday night. The ladies in charge of the affair were greatly encouraged by the liberal patronage bestowed. Two thousand dollars was cleared.

The attendance Saturday night was large and all present were pleased with their evening's experience.

At a late hour artcles which had not been disposed of were sold at auction.

Before the close of the bazaar several ladies of Alexandria county enlivened the evening by rendering musical selections in a creditable manner.

The "fortune-teller" who was in attendance at the bazaar was well-patronized by many who asked of things past, things present, and things to come.

DISCUSS COUNTY'S INCORPORATION

Supervisors Appoint Committee to Suggest Plan For Change.

VIEWS EXPRESSED

One Faction Holds That Division Into Towns Would Mean Stagnation For Rural Sections.

That incorporation of the whole of Alexandria county into a singe town is the only proposition that should be considered in regard to changing its present form of government for one better suited to the needs of the community is the opinion of Will W. Douglas, of Ballston, acording to the Alexandria county Monitor. In discussing the appointment by the board of supervisors at its last meeting of a committee to prepare a tentative form for incorporation, with a view to asking the State for a charter, Mr. Douglas said that he had repeatedly advocated incorporation of the entire county.

Separate incorporation of one or more of the more thickly built up sections, such as Clarendon, Ballston, or Cherrydale he suggested, would mean that the remaining area would have to struggle along with a county government probably less able to handle its problems than the present one.

Mr. Douglas has been instrumental on previous occasions in defeating movements to incorporate separate sections of the county. He said that he has not recently consulted the laws on the subject, but did not know of any legal objection to the incorporation of a whole county any more than in the case of any portion of a county.

The general objection to incorporation has been that it would greatly increase the number of elective officials, a council of two branches and a mayor constituting the most usual form of city government in Virginia. The probable result would be a cumberson legislative body with the majority of its members entirely ignorant of the science or modern theories of governing. The members would be selected by wards, thus affording opportunity for putting neighborhood wrangles into politics, and the two-house feature would make it difficult to get measure passed.

If the county could on becoming a city adopt the commission form of government, which is possble under Virgina law, there would be an obvious advantage over the present situation. There would then be no question as to its power to pave sidewalks, light street, provide water and sewerage, and do all of the things for which here is general demand. A few men in absolute control of the local government could probably accomplish many things that a board of supervisors with its restricted powers hesitates to tackle, and the increased compensation that would go with such a change would attract men who could afford to give a large part, if not all of their time to the government.

On the other hand it is pointed out that under the broad powers conferred on the boards of supervisors of counties such as Alexandria by the general assembly at its last session, the local government as it is now organized is practically of the commission form. It can do apparently anything that a city government could do, and is not burdened with many of the responsibilities that attach to an actual city government.

In the meantime, while the board's committee on incorporation is investigating that proposition, the supervisors are being urged to go ahead at even a faster pace than they have already adopted and use the powers conferred upon them by the act of the assembly. Reversal or disapproval of their actions by Judge J. B. T. Thornton of the Circuit Court, who has advisory supervision and a final veto on the ordinances they enact, is the worst thing that can befall them, and fear of the exercise of that discretion by the judge should not deter them from taking a hand at some of the things that part of the public seems to think a town council could do with its eyes shut.

WILSON MEETING WARM RECEPTION

Crowds Cheer President as He Passes Through Streets.

OPENS THE CONGRESS.

Makes Address on Occasion—Weather Unpropitious, But no Attention Paid by Throngs.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 27.—Mobile flag-draped and historical, gave President Wilson his warmest welcome since his election today.

From this moment he stepped from his private car into the automobile which carried him to breakfast at the Battle House and later to the revenue cutter Winona, where he took a trip up the Mobile river and out into Mobile bay, his appearance was the signal for a wild outburst of yells, horn tooting and band playing.

All along the route of the journey he passed between dense lines of people who overflowed into alleys or hung from windows, waving hats, umbrellas and flags. Silk-hatted delegations, corps of fraternal organization and school children massed the line of way and bade the first Southern President since the civil war "welcome home."

The fact that a chill wind was sweeping in off the bay, bringing with it a rain similar to the one which greeted him in Philadelphia did not abate the enthusiasm of the crowd which has flocked here in special trains from all over the South to greet the President during his four-hour stay in the city.

From the Winona the President was taken to the Lyric Theater where he opened the convention of the Southern Commercial Congress with an address. The President immediately afterward was scheduled to leave for Washington aboard a special train arriving there late Tuesday night.

BEFORE APPELATE COURT

Several Cases From Alexandria to Be Decided By That Tribunal

A number of important cases, in which Alexandrians are interested, will come before the Supreme Court of Appeals, which will meet in Richmond, on Tuesday, November 4th. They have all been appealed from the Circuit and Corporation Courts of this city.

Among the most important will be that of the contested seat in the City Council which is at present held by Julian Y. Williams, from the Second Ward. Mr. Williams moved his residence to Alexandria county, two years ago and six of the city councilmen instituted quo warranto proceedings against him to oust him from his position. A jury in the Corporation Court brought in a verdict of guilty and Mr. Williams appealed to the Supreme Court.

Two suits growing out of the death of B. Fleet Board, will also be decided by the Supreme Court. They were instituted by the B. F. Board Motor Truck Company, and the Board, Armstrong Co., of which Mr. Board was president, against the Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York, to recover $25,000 on two life insurance policies, held by the two local concern's upon Mr. Board's life. Payment on the policies was refused on the ground that Mr. Board had committed suicide and that the holders of the policies had no insurable interest in his life. A verdict against the insurance companies was rendered by jures in this city, but a writ of error was granted by the Supreme Court

Another case which will be finally settled is that of Mrs. Alce McMenamin and husband against the Southern Railway Company for $7,000 damages, said to have resulted from the establishment of a coal chute near the plaintiff's residence, in West End. The case has been tried three times. At first a verdict of $1,750 was rendered against the railway company. This was set aside by the Supreme Court. On the second trial, the jury was unable to agree, and the third time the attorneys for the company demurred to the evidence and the jury was instructed to bring in a verdict for Mrs. McMenamin. Judge J. B. T. Thornton, of the Circuit Court, sustained the demurrer but the Supreme Court granted a rehearing.

BOUND FOR ALEXANDRIA

Schooner With Plaster Said to Have Parisian Gowns Aboard. Officers on Watch

In an effort to catch those said to be attempting to smuggle $100,000 worth of Parisian gowns into this country at this port, from the plaster laden schooner Emma F. Angell, Special Agent Crumps, of the Treasury Department, is waiting on board the steamer Relief, of the Virginia Pilots' Association, at Cape Henry.

The Angell, a three-masted American vessel, under command of Capt. Kneeland, is now bound from Chevre, Nova Scotia, for Alexandria, having sailed from the former port about October 1. Crumps is attached to the Baltimore Custom House.

The schooner cannot reach Alexandria without passing Cape Henry, and if her catptain attempts to enter either night or day she will be boarded by the government agents on board the Relief.

Rumors of the alleged attempt to smuggle are discredited by customs officials at Alexandria, although the apparent activity of special agents of the Treasury Department in the vicinity has been noticeable.

Although Special Agent John Corwin, of the Treasury Department, has been in Alexandria for a week, he denies that his activity has had anything to do with the alleged smuggling plot. Mr. Corwin said last night:

"There is nothing to the rumor of a smuggling scheme, so far as I know. I have not been detailed to watch for any smuggled goods at this port, and have been here solely to instruct Geo. T. Caton, the newly appointed collector of the port, in his duties. There is no connection with my visit and the alleged smuggling."

FLEET STILL WITHIN CALL.

Battleship Connecticut Delevolps Engine Trouble.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 27.—Reports last night from the European bound Atlantic fleet are to the eect that the big warships are less than 200 miles off the Virginia Capes, still steaming eastward, and that the rate is less than eight knots an hour. It is not believed the fleet will be more than 500 or 600 miles at sea by Wednesday.

The fact that the battleship Connecticut is hampered by a slight engine trouble is given as the reason for the slow speed of the fleet at present. This, however, is recognized as merely a good excuse in which an order can be carried out for the fleet to remain within call until the results of the Mexican election are ascertained.

Fair weather is being experienced at sea and each of the ship's has reported "All's well."

GIRL'S BITE BAFFLES THIEF.

Last Resort in Desperate Battle Causes Flight.

Williamsport, Pa. Oct. 27.—After she had fought 15 minutes with a robber and prevented him from getting beyond the hall in the home of W. U. Mussina, a 17-year-old servant, found she was fighting a losing battle. Then she sank her teeth into his hand and screamed lustily. The fellow threw the girl on the floor rendering her unconscious and escaped.

The man had called when the servant was alone and had pushed his way into the house when she responded to his ring at the door.

One deputy sheriff and eight strikers are reported killed in a battle that continued from 11 o'clock until late yesterday afternoon at Trinidad, Col. The deputies were sent shortly before noon to put an end to the firing at Berwind, Hastings, Tobasco and Cedar Hill Camps. The fight was renewed near Ludlow.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Was Patrolling the Beach off Hatteras When he Was Stricken Dead.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 27.—During a severe thunder and lightning storm early today over the Hatteras district, William Styret, a life-saver, was struck by lightning and killed while patrolling the beach.

From the Hatteras life-saving station it was declared that never in the history of man at that point was there such severe thunder and lightning as prevailed between mid-night Saturday night and 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Between midnight and 9 o'clock today there had fallen at Hatteras more than 31-2 inches of rain—a literal cloudburst. But for the sparsely settled country much havoc and loss of human life would have resulted from the storm. The lightning struck in many places. Trees were torn to pieces and the ground in places torn up.

The storm was felt at points along the entire North Carolina coast. The rains for twenty-four hours have been severe in all parts of Eastern North Carolina, with washouts reported in some places. The rain of the past twenty-four hours has brought the total precipitation at Wilmington, N. C., up to nearly ten inches during the month of October. Lumberton, Nags Head, Newbern, Washington, Elizabeth City, and other points throughout Eastern North Carolina report heavy rains.

NEGRESS SLAYS STEPSISTER.

Plunges Knife in Her Heart After Cocaine Party.

Philadelphia, Oct. 27.—During a brawl at Eleventh and Bainbridge streets, early yesterday morning, Molly McGuire, 18 years old, colored, was stabbed throug hthe heart by a stepsister, Mary Lee, 25 years old. The McGuire girl was sent to the Pennsylvania Hospital, but died in the patrol wagon. The Lee woman was arrested and held without bail to await the action of the coroner.

According to the police who investigated the affair, the two had attended a "cocaine party," and were on the way to their home when, at Eleventh and Bainbridge streets, they started to quarrel over some trivial matter. The police declare that the Lee woman drew a butcher knife from her dress and plunged it into the bosom of her stpsister.

KILLED IN QUARREL AT BAR.

Alleged Slayer Had to be Beaten Into Custody With Blackjack.

Hazleton, Pa., Oct. 27.—In a tussle over possession of a revolver, after they had quarreled about drinks, Mike Eodaman was killed. Samuel Ewanischsodzich is in the lock-up charged with the deed. County Detective McKelvey had to strike him down with a blackjack to take him.

The following unsolicited testimonial should certainly be sufficient to give hope and courage to persons afflicted with chronic dyspepsia: "I have been a chronic dyspeptic for years. And of all the medicine I have taken, Chamberlain's Tablets have done me more good than anything else," says W. G. Mattison, No. 7 Sherman St., Hornellsville, N. Y. For sale by all dealers.

INTERPRETATION OF THE MANN LAW.

In another column of the Gazette is published an interview with Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett, of this city, which expresses her views in reference to the Mann white slave act, which through the interpretation of the courts in California has taken on such a broad aspect, that in case the lower court is upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States, efforts will be made to amend the law by Congress. It is against this latter action that Mrs. Barrett protests, and she utters warning to the Democratic party that the women of this country, who hold the balance of power in a number of states, will resent their interference with a law which so powerfully protects their weaker sisters.

While there are many valuable suggestions contained in Mrs. Barrett's interview and no one will dispute to her the need of throwing every protection around women, especially those of tender age who are not familiar with the wiles of the world, we are not convinced that a law which imposes the severe penalty for that most hideous of all crimes, traffic in women, should also apply to the personal misdeeds of men and women, who travel from one state to another, for purposes of an immoral character.

We have always believed that the interpretation of the law in the sensational Diggs Camsandetti, case in California, was in error and after the verdict was rendered stated that while the severe punishment was well deserved their conviction under the Mann law was not justified and would not be sustained by the higher courts, where it is now pending.

We agree with Mrs. Barrett that the severest punishment should be meted out to every man who takes advantage of a woman either for commercial purposes or for the gratification of his own personal desires, but there is a difference between the two things which we do not believe can be considered in the same statute because of the widely different motives that prompts each case.

Let the United States, which has power over its interstate traffic enact the most stringent laws that will protect girls being shipped from one state to another so that white slavery may no longer exist within its borders, but let each state handle the misdeeds of its people in accordance with the well prescribed precedents which have heretofore guided in these matters. If the state law is not strong enough, if the penalty is not sufficient, if there are not satisfactory safeguards for the protection of the girls and women of the state let us see that proper laws are passed and enforced.

FOOTPAD PROVES WOMAN.

Knocked Down and Losing Hat, Locks Betray Deserted Wife.

Sunbury, Pa., Oct. 27.—While Harold K. Jones, of Scranton, an athletic telephone cable splicer, was walking along a dark street here early yesterday, returning from a visit to his sweetheart, he was accosted by a stranger who asked him for a match. Jones said, "Sure" groped his head and was getting it when the person said, "Hands up." Jones looked up and into the barrel of a small revolver.

Like a flash the splicer's foot and fist flew out at the same time, and the highwayman was on the ground with Jones astride his back.

The footpad's hat was knocked off and a heavy coil of hair was presented, bringing the confession that "he" was a woman. She begged off, saying that her husband had deserted her and that she was without funds.

Impressed with herappearance and apparent truthfulness Jones gave her $2 and di not call the police.

THE LYNCHBURG SUFFRAGE CONVENTION.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

That the women of Virginia use every available direct method for the attainment of the ballot and at no time lay aside their dignity, was the keynote struck at the convention of the Equal Suffrage League of Virginia at Lynchburg Friday.

Few states in the union could number among its members present, a more notable delegation, than has the State of Virginia in this the third convention and no intelligent, unprejudiced listener to the arguments advanced by such women, as Mrs. B. B. Valentine, Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett, Mrs. L. Collier Wilcox and Miss Mary Johnston, would fail to see why women should not have the ballot.

Not less convincing were the statements of other women present, the taxpayer, who only asked that she be given an equal chance to choose the public officials who are to spend her money; the Social Worker, who for herself might ask nothing, but for her sisters and the children in the factories, she asked that women be given a voice on the laws which govern these factories, the mother, who would help choose the men who make the laws which regulate the moral conditions of the city.

It seems incomprehensible, that such a body of women should be relegated by the constitution to the position occupied by idiots and imbeciles.

All these arguments and many more will be concentrated on the state legislature, during this coming session. They will be asked to remove that masque which they call chivalry and behind which they are not to hide. They will be shown that though they have given women their love and their toil, even their life, they have denied them that which they most crave, their respect. They will have it forcibly brought to them that though they may leave to the mother of their boys a fortune they can not leave to her that respect for her opinions which can only come through the vote.

CHAIN OF HOLD-UPS.

Kills One Man and Mortally Wounds Another.

Denver, Col., Oct. 25.—A bandit running amuck near the heart of the city early yesterday held up five pedestrians within a few blocks and shot and instantly killed T. J. Chase, of Palmer Lake, Col., and mortally wounded E. A. Clark, of this city.

The bandit fled before an automobile filled with police, who traced him from the scene of one hold-up to another only to arrive too late.

The shooting began when the bandit held up Antonio Fuguris, a street sweeper, sending a bullet through his hat.

A few minutes later E. A. Clark staggered into a drug store with a bullet through his right lung. Four blocks away Chase met his death. Without a word the bandit shot him through the heart. He held up and robbed two others without shooting them.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Thousands of Southern folk in great cheering throngs, welcomed President Wilson to Dixieland as he sped through Virginia, North and South Carolina and Georgia enroute to the Southern Commercial Congress at Mobile, Ala., where he will deliver an address today. The shrill notes of the rebel yell at Salisbury, N. C., awakened the President earlier than he intended to rise. At villages and hamlets where the president's train ran slowly, at cities where stops were made there were huge crowds, enthusiastic and happy at their first glimpse at Woodrow Wilson, the first native of the South elevated to the presidency since the civil war.

The Swiss astronomer, Lacoultre, has just published the results of his researches for the last five years concerning the planet Mars. He guardedly hints at the possibility that the Maritans have been signalling the earth. He observed intermittent luminous apparitions resembling the rays of searchlights which appeared always in the same spots.

General elections were held throughout Italy yesterday. The disorders were not as grave as expected, although one person was killed and many were wounded. Numerous arrests were made.

Two young and attractive sisters, —Olga and Sophie Lubinoff—belonging to a prominent famly in Kovno, Russia, fought a duel yesterday to see which should marry a young man, with whom both girls were in love, with the result that Sophie is dead and her sister is dangerously wounded.

With the forward hole a veritable niferno of blazing cotton. The Rotliner Sowwell, raced into Halifax, N S., yesterday after a close escape from a fate like that of the Volturno. The Sowwell was bound from Savanah Ga., for Havre, France, with a full load of cotton. The fire started Friday morning. The cargo of the vessel is worth about $85,000, and steam and water pipes are playing upon the flames which are now under control

Selling the edifice of the Welch congregational Church, at Akron, Ohio for $16, Rev. George Mansfield Griffiths made it necessary for the members of the congregation to meet in tent yesterday. This and other charges have been brought against him with the result that the State conference has forbidden him to preach at Akran. Griffiths was recently secretly married to Miss Esther Watson of Akron.

A secret invention similar to Ulivi's "F" rays, have been the subject of experiment at Portsmouth, Eng., resulting in the blowing up of the old warship Terpsichore by wireless influences at a distance of eight moles. HELPLESS AS BABY
Down in Mind Unable to Work and What Helped Her.
Summit Point, W. Va.—Mrs. Anna Belle Emey, of this place, says: "I suffered for 15 years with an awful pain in my right side, caused from womanly trouble, and doctored lots for it, but without success. I suffered so very much that I became down in mind, and as helpless as a baby. I was in the worst kind of shape. Was unable to do any work.
I began taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, and got relief from the very first dose. By the time I had taken 12 bottles, my health was completely restored. I am now 48 years years old, but feel as good as I did when only 16.
Cardui certainly saved me from losing my mind, and I feel it my duty to speak in its favor. I wish I had some power over poor, suffering women, and could make them know the good it would do them."
If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, it will certainly be worth your while to give Cardui a trial. It has been helping weak women for more than 50 years, and will help you now.
Try Cardui. Your druggist sells it.

NEW SAFETY DEVICE.

Invention by Washington Man Will Stop Trains That Pass Signals.

Washington, D. C. Oct. 27.—The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company has during the past year advertised a reward of $10,000, to be paid on the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Railroad Commissioners of some of the New England States, to whosoever shall invent an automatic device that will safely arrest an express steam locomotive which has passed danger signals.

This advertisement has attracted a great many men of inventive minds and has resulted at last in a device which, according to Expert Signal Engineers, accomplishes the purpose desired.

A few days ago a service test was made of the Buell system for the automatic control of railway trains on the Queen & Crescent Railroad. A special train, equipped with the Buell apparatus made a trip of one hundred and sixty miles under the supervision of Mr. J. C. Mock, Chief Signal Engineer of the Michigan Central Railway.

The train was placed under the control of Mr. Mock and handled as he saw fit, in order that a thorough disinterested test might be made. Reports that reach Washington show that the apparatus worked in the most satisfactory manner, and that the experts were highly pleased with the results.

The apparatus, which is the invention of Mr. J. W. Buell, of Washington, D. C., is very simple and inexpensive. It consists of an electric battery, governing instrument and recorder.

The battery maintains an independent circuit on the engine, between the cab and the forward trucks, which transfers the wayside signals to the cab itself. As soon as an engine pulling a train passes a distant or danger signal, giving warning of a train ahead, broken rail, open switch, etc., the signal is immediately conveyed to the cab of the locomotive, warning the engineer of the danger ahead by lashing a red light in the cab, blowing the whistle of the engine and applying the air brakes to the train. All these different operations are performed electrically, and within a period of three seconds after the engine has passed a danger signal.

PANAMA CANAL BILL.

Free Toll Provision and Five Per Cent. Rebate.

Washington, Oct. 26.—In view of the agitation going on, not only in the United States but in European countries as well, over the free toll provision of the Panama Canal bill, and the five per cent rebate given ships flying the American flag and engaged in the foreign trade, as provided in the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill, the forthcoming convention of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, which is to be held in this city December 3, 4 and 5 next, giving promise of being the liveliest convention in its history. And as President Wilson will deliver the opening address, those in charge of arrangements fr the convention are looking forward with keen interest to the position which the chief executive will take on matters relating to waterway improvement and their relation to the subject of transportation.

While the program for the convention has not been finally made up, in the main it is completed, and for variety and scope will compare favorably wth the program of preceding conventions. In addition to President Wilson, Secretary of War Garrison, under whose direction the Board of Engineers, charged with river and harbor work, perform their functions will have a most important place on the program. This being a new administration, made up largely of men who have come from scholastic walks of life,the position which it will take on the intensely practical question of the development of the rivers and harbors of the country will be watched with the greatdest interest.
